Q: Python checking if a list includes an item in a list I'm new to python and for whatever reason I keep getting a 'NoneType' object has no attribute 'lower'. I'm trying to look for a word in a list of words. My list of words is a list of phrases. The words in that list are lowercased. How can I check if one word is in that list of lowercased words? word = "HORROR" lower_word = "horror" phrase = "wonderful horrors" list_of_words = ["wonderful", "horror", "crashed", "so scary"] The end result I'm trying to get is that if the word "horror" is in the list of lowercased words, then it would print out "yes, your word is in the list of lowercased words". A: You can use any function: def contains(phrase, word): phrase_lower = phrase.
