KeyMACRO is a program that supports password protection to removable disks. It allows you to set a password that can be retrieved later in case the computer is stolen or lost. The tool is an easy way to set a password to prevent others from getting access to the data on your disk. The program can easily save up to 15 different passwords per disk. The ability to save a wide range of different passwords makes this tool an effective way to secure data. Although it does not encrypt the data on the disk itself, KeyMACRO can effectively limit the access to data that is stored on removable media. KeyMACRO can be configured to launch automatically at system startup. In case the computer is stolen or lost, you can retrieve a password by entering it on the computer and having the tool launch itself automatically. A way to prevent others from getting access to your passwords is by having them set using a KeyMACRO account. In this case, anyone else entering the tool will not be able to save your passwords and will only be able to see a brief description of them. You can set up the tool to launch automatically when the system boots up. In this case, the tool will launch before Windows starts and give you the chance to set a new password. You can also manually launch the program whenever you want. After setting up the tool, the application prompts you to select a password, a storage location and a description. You can also choose to create a user account for you. The storage location can be your network drive, CD/DVD, USB, floppy disk or any other removable media. KeyMACRO allows you to set different passwords for your storage locations. This tool can be configured to launch automatically at system startup in order to prevent others from getting access to your data. It works in the background and doesn't disturb you as it launches. Once installed, it saves your passwords and launches automatically whenever you are ready to change your passwords. For example, let's say you wanted to change the password for CD/DVD, USB and floppy disk. In that case, you would double-click on the system tray icon and select those three storage locations. You would then type the desired password and press enter to change the access to those devices. You can also change the description of your device. In case you ever lose your device, you
